Email Assignment #1

VE300
Email Assignment #1
Pan Chongdan
ID:516370910121

For this assignment, you have 2 tasks.

Task 1: Information E-Mail: Confusion over Fall Training Conference

Tom Cruise and Julie Hou are colleagues working in the same organization but in different offices. They do not know each other well. They have been assigned to the same project.

YOUR TASK. Analyze the entire email message line by line and revise it for improved readability, i.e., better organization and visual presentation. After attending lectures and doing the assigned reading, you should find several weaknesses in this email.

Write your improved version below. Variation in student response is expected (multiple improved versions are possible). Delete the original message after your work is done.

To: Julie Hou <julie.hou@gamma.com>
From: Tom Cruise <tom.cruise@gamma.com>
Subject: Help for the Gamma Fall Training Conference
Cc:
Hi, Julie,
My name is Tom Cruise, and we're working in the same organization. Could you please help us plan the Gamm Fall Training Conference?
The conference will be held in Shanghai and we need someone to send the speakers some e-mail to confirm their dates and topics. Here are the speakers I have lined up for training sessions:

1. Nicole Gold will speak on Tuesday, November 12. Her scheduled topic is "Using E-Mail and IM Effectively." Her e-mail address: n.gold@etc.com
2. Anthony Mills will speak on Wednesday, November 13. His topic "Leading Groups and Teams" and his e-mail address is: tony.mills@sunbelt.net
3. Yun Chen has chosen "Working in Virtual Teams" as her topic, but she is not sure about the training date. Her e-mail address is: yun.chen@networkomni.com.

It will be very kind of you to help us because you can help make this one of the best training sessions ever. Since we must print the program soon, I will appreciate your work by the Sep.1 deadline. Feel free to contact me if you have any questions.

Thanks,

Tom

Email Assignment #1

Task 2: Information E-Mail: Poorly Organized Message about Interns

The following message from the human resources director Justin Bieber to project director Liming Liang suffers from poor organization and murky focus.

YOUR TASK. Again, analyze the entire message. Determine what the main idea is and revise the message to develop that idea more clearly. Don't just rearrange the sentences. Think about logical and smooth transitions between paragraphs.

To: Liming Liang <joshua.liang@bayside.com>
From: Justin Bieber <justin.bieber@bayside.com>
Subject: Meeting for the Internship Program
Cc:

Hi, Liming,

I'm writing this e-mail to talk about this internship program and I'd like to arrange for you to meet the vice president and me.

As you know, we hope the program can provide us with excellent personnel. Thanks to your inquiry about the status of our interns, we realize that our program must meet legal regulations. After communication with our attorney, we learned that our interns are not under legal protection.

All interns must be considered employees and paid at least the minimum wage. They are legitimate only if they are receiving real training and they can't displace a regular employee, complete a client's work for which we bill, or are promised full-time jobs at the end of training. Having every single intern sign a contract saying that they are willing to accept college credit in place of wages does not provide legal protection. An intern must do more than busy work.

We believe that future interns must have a structured training program. As a result, we must make some changes. Could you please meet the vice president, and we'll review the program and make changes together? I'm looking forward to our meeting.

Justin Bieber, Director

Human Resources